

Solar scams tend to be more sophisticated than other contract fraud because they involve costly and complex financing for the project. Victims often sign multi-page digital contracts on ...

In these scams, someone contacts you through email, phone, social media, or even in person pretending to be a solar company salesperson.

Scams are unfortunately common in the solar industry. Learn ...

The Treasury Department works with other federal agencies, including the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to spread the word about ...

As solar grows in popularity, more scammers are targeting consumers. Here are three common solar scams to look out for, how to avoid them and how to report solar scams.

These scams start with an unexpected phone call, message on social, or even an in-person visit. The so-called official offers you an "energy audit" to reduce your utility costs. Or they might try to sign you ...

Scams are unfortunately common in the solar industry. Learn more about some of the most likely scams you may face when trying to go solar.

In this blog, we'll break down the most common solar scams and give you practical advice on how to avoid them, so you can confidently make the switch to solar power.

If you suspect you've fallen victim to a solar panel scam, report it to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and your state's consumer protection agency. You should also file a complaint ...

While you are browsing solar power companies, one of them may offer to install a solar panel or solar roof in your home for a small cost or even for free. It's an intentionally misleading...

It's likely a scam. While there are some government-funded solar programs for households that qualify, "going solar" isn't free. Honest businesses will tell you exactly how much it'll ...

While you are browsing solar power companies, one of them may ...

Web: <https://www.black-hat.co.za>