

What should I do if I get cheated when installing photovoltaic panels

It's likely a scam. While there are some government-funded solar programs for households that qualify, "going solar" isn't free. Honest businesses will tell you exactly how much it'll ...

And we know what to do if a solar power company is cheating their customers. If you've installed solar panels on your home and been victimized, we can help. Click Here to Submit Your ...

"If you're interested in going solar, research the costs and benefits on your own, and then get bids from several contractors in your area," suggests Amy Nofziger, director of victim support ...

Whether a salesman comes to your door to sell solar panels or another product, the consumer must knowingly provide permission for credit reports to be pulled. Obtaining access to ...

This could involve the company installing the wrong equipment, failing to meet the project timeline, or refusing to honor a warranty. A contract lawyer will review your agreement to identify ...

If you've received an offer for "free solar panels," it could be a scam. Always look for businesses you can trust - like Accredited Businesses using the BBB Seal. Here's what you should ...

If you're interested in installing solar products, use your best judgment and seek advice from a licensed professional before making any purchase or investment.

When faced with cheating in solar photovoltaic dealings, one avenue is to report the incident to relevant authorities. This could include local consumer protection agencies, state energy ...

All this threatens the residential rooftop solar industry's impressive momentum, and some are working to repair its reputation. But what if you want to go solar now? Here are some things to...

What should I do if I get cheated when installing photovoltaic panels

Web: <https://www.black-hat.co.za>